

About Us

Transporea is an online solution that provides information from the aviation sector about the current supply and demand for Aircrafts and Flights. Transporea provides these in the form of interactive lists in the web-based platform, which eventually serves as a communication tool, as well.

We believe that Transporea shall speed up the process of arranging the deals between the ones who have and the ones that need an aircraft or individual flight. The lists are designed to give quick, easy to understand and transparent information for all users of the platform. Furthermore, all the lists are limited in time during which are visible in the platform. As such all the information is always current.

Transporea enables shared efficiencies for all parties involved. We believe that Transporea allows to continually optimise processes in the shared aviation industry.
